Kirkby Lonsdale
Window Company

Who we are

Kirkby Lonsdale Window Company works with homeowners who care about how their home looks, feels, and performs over time. Based in the North, we specialise in considered glazing solutions for properties across the Lake District, North Lancashire, and North Yorkshire — from modern architectural projects to sensitive renovations of traditional homes.

We are a family-run company that values doing things properly. Every project is approached with a focus on detail, proportion, and longevity — not speed or volume. The products we install are carefully selected, and the way they are fitted matters just as much. The result is a finish that feels right, works as it should, and stands the test of time.

Who we work with

Our work is best suited to homeowners who approach their projects with intention — where the overall finish, proportion and detail matter just as much as the end result.

We typically work with:

- Homeowners undertaking considered renovations or extensions
- New build projects seeking a refined, architectural finish
- Period properties requiring careful, sympathetic upgrades
- Clients who prioritise long-term quality over short-term decisions

We deliberately limit the number of projects we take on, allowing each one to be delivered with the level of attention it deserves.

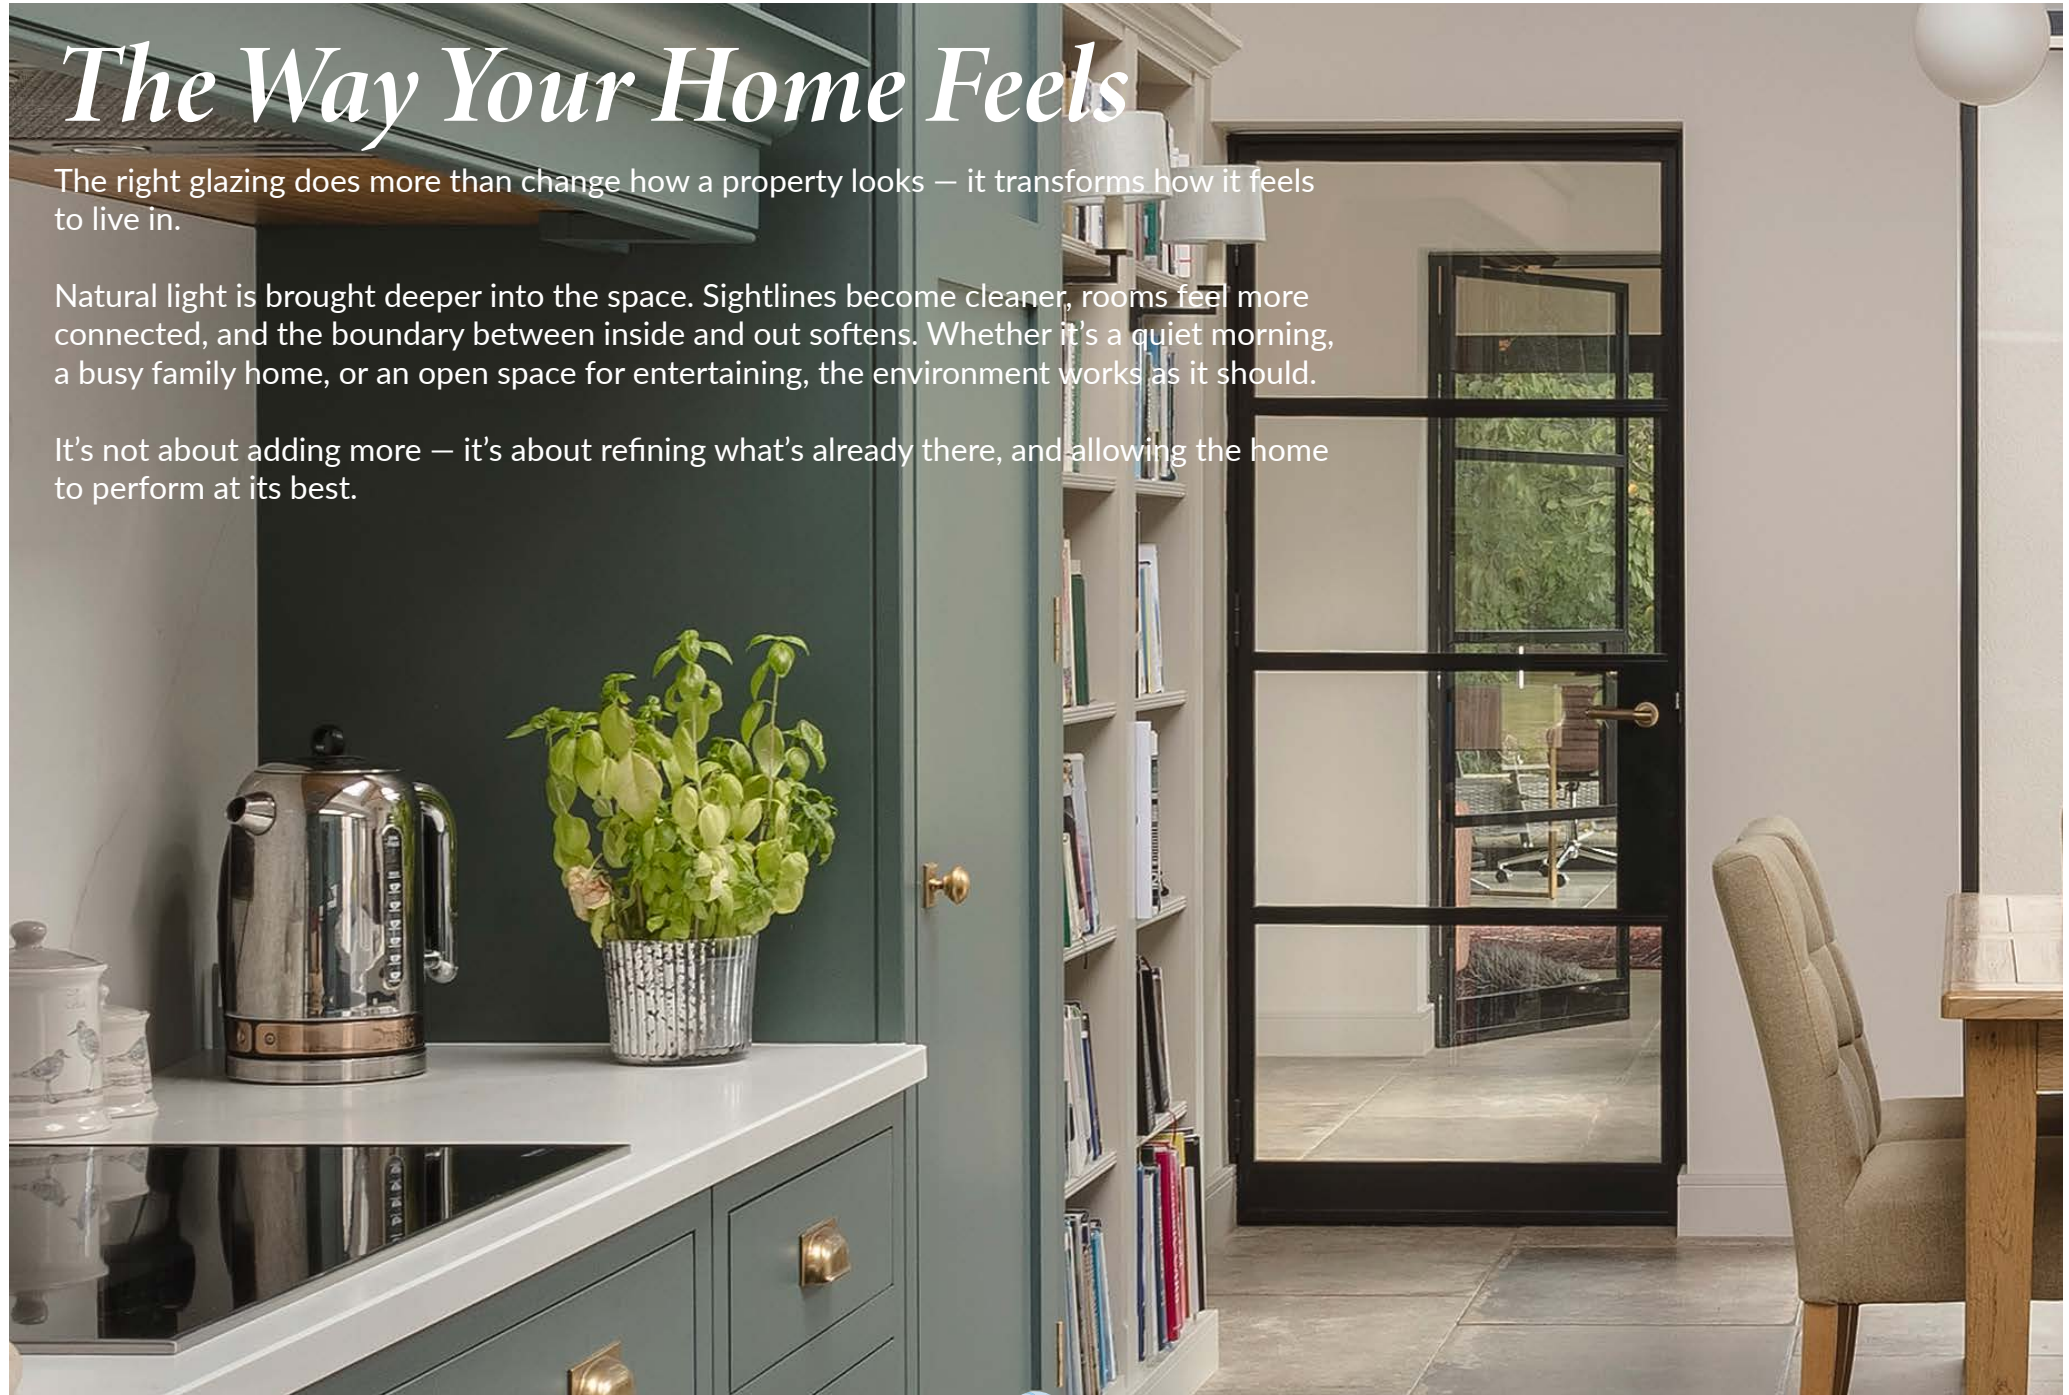

The Way Your Home Feels

The right glazing does more than change how a property looks – it transforms how it feels to live in.

Natural light is brought deeper into the space. Sightlines become cleaner, rooms feel more connected, and the boundary between inside and out softens. Whether it's a quiet morning, a busy family home, or an open space for entertaining, the environment works as it should.

It's not about adding more – it's about refining what's already there, and allowing the home to perform at its best.

Considered Glazing

Every property requires a different approach. The style of the home, the proportions of the openings, and how the space is used all influence the right solution.

We work across a range of systems, from contemporary aluminium designs with slim sightlines, to more traditional styles suited to period properties. Large openings, feature doors, and carefully detailed window layouts are all considered as part of the overall scheme – not as individual items.

The focus is always the same: to create a result that feels balanced, performs properly, and complements the character of the property.

Modern Aluminium Living

Clean lines, minimal sightlines, and a more open way of living – aluminium systems are designed for properties where space, light, and proportion are key.

Large areas of glazing allow natural light to move freely through the home, creating brighter, more connected spaces. Frames are kept deliberately slim, giving a refined, architectural feel without distraction.

Well suited to contemporary homes, extensions, and reconfigured layouts, aluminium offers both strength and flexibility – allowing for larger openings and a more considered finish throughout.

Heritage & Conservation

Working with older properties requires a different level of care. Proportion, detail, and character all need to be respected, ensuring any changes sit comfortably within the original building.

We provide solutions suited to period homes and conservation settings, where maintaining the appearance of traditional windows is essential. From carefully balanced sightlines to authentic detailing, each element is considered to achieve a result that feels in keeping with the property.

The aim is not to change the character of the home, but to enhance its performance while preserving what makes it unique.

Entrance & Door Design

The entrance sets the tone for the entire home. It's the first impression on arrival, and the last detail noticed when leaving — so it should feel considered, balanced, and in keeping with the property as a whole.

From contemporary aluminium doors to more traditional styles, each design is approached as part of the wider scheme. Proportions, glazing, colour, and hardware all play a role in creating an entrance that feels right.

Beyond appearance, performance matters. Security, durability, and day-to-day usability are built into every system, ensuring the result is as reliable as it is visually refined.

Large Openings & Space

Creating larger openings transforms how a home is used. Spaces feel more open, more connected, and better suited to modern living — whether that's everyday life or hosting and entertaining.

Wide-span glazing systems allow entire elevations to open up, reducing the separation between inside and out. Natural light moves more freely, views are uninterrupted, and the space feels more considered as a whole.

Each opening is designed around the property, ensuring proportions, structure, and usability all work together. The result is not just a larger opening, but a better way of living within the space.

The Details That Matter

The overall result is defined by the smaller details – the elements that aren't always obvious at first, but make a lasting difference over time.

From the quality of the glass and finishes, to the precision of installation and alignment, every stage is approached with care. Materials are selected to meet current standards, and systems are installed correctly to ensure they perform as intended.

It's this attention to detail that ensures the end result not only looks right on completion, but continues to perform and feel the same for years to come.

Our Process

Every project is managed in a clear and structured way, ensuring each stage is handled properly from the outset through to completion.

We begin with an initial consultation to understand the property and the intended outcome. This is followed by a detailed survey, where all dimensions and specifications are confirmed before moving into manufacture.

Products are then made to order, not taken from stock, ensuring they are tailored to the property. Once ready, installation is carried out with care and precision, followed by final checks to ensure everything performs as it should.

A Considered Choice

Choosing the right company is as important as choosing the right products. The overall result depends not just on what is installed, but how it is approached from the very beginning.

At Kirksby Lonsdale Window Company, we focus on delivering work that feels right for the property — considered in its design, carefully executed, and built to last. Each project is treated individually, with time taken to ensure the outcome reflects both the home and the expectations of the client.

We are not a volume-driven company. Our focus is on doing fewer projects, properly — ensuring the finish, performance, and overall experience meet the standard we set for ourselves.

A Space, Properly Built

This project was designed as a true extension of the home – not a traditional conservatory, but a space intended to be used comfortably all year round.

Built using a solid roofing system and carefully specified glazing, the structure provides the feel of a permanent room rather than an add-on. The use of a REHAU window system ensures reliable performance, while the overall design allows natural light to remain a key feature without compromising comfort.

The result is a space that feels fully integrated with the property – consistent in temperature, balanced in appearance, and suited to everyday living.

Heritage, Carefully Replaced

Manufactured in hardwood timber, the new sash windows were designed to sit comfortably within the original openings, with careful attention given to proportions, detailing, and finish. Traditional features such as matching sash horns were incorporated to ensure the overall appearance remained true to the property's style.

While visually sympathetic, the windows benefit from modern double glazing, improving thermal performance and day-to-day comfort without compromising on appearance.

The result is a considered upgrade that respects the building – while quietly enhancing how it performs.
